

Inclusion for Young Children and Their Families: Three Part Series

If you are an early intervention/early childhood professional supporting young children with disabilities and their families, it is important to know the facts about what makes inclusion work. Inclusion benefits children, families, and communities, however, the concept of inclusion and what inclusion looks like in the birth-3 years is often misunderstood.

Do you want to better support the children and families you work with?
Join us for a series of three learning opportunities.

The series also includes topic and reflection guides so you can personalize this professional development experience.

The interactive, online series includes three sessions. You can attend one, two, or all three.
